INSTRUCTIONS

- Unwrap and unroll the dock on a clean, flat surface
- Connect the flexible hose to the pump and to the inflation valve on the dock.

- Plug the pump and turn the switch on.
- The dock will inflate in just a few minutes.
- Turn off the pump and disconnect the hose.
- Check the internal pressure of the dock by connecting the gauge to the valve.
- In case of inflating more than the recommended psi, the safety valve will let air out.
- The safety valve will stop automatically once the recommended pressure is achieved.
- Take the dock out of the water to deflate.
- Press the inflation valve down and turn it so it stays down (opened position).
- Use the electric pump to deflate the dock.
- Allow the dock to dry completely before storing it to avoid mold or mildew accumulation over time.

CAUTION!

- Respect the maximum weight limit on the dock.
- Overinflating may cause damages to the dock and interfere with the operation of the safety valve.
- We recommend deflating and storing your dock if you do not plan to use it for long periods of time.
- Rinse your dock with water after use especially if you go on a variety of bodies of water.
